when he was in Battery D during the war.

Col. Thurston was the next speaker. He said it often made him laugh to see how and in so many different ways the soldiers would be sent out on guard and come in sober, but the next morning they would all be drunk, and it was found that they would draw the charges from their guns and fill them with whisky, and bring it in camp and get drunk on it the next day. It made him sad also to see men destroying themselves by the curse of intemperance.

Dr. George concluded the meeting by saying if a person studied all reforms they only come up to a certain standard, until the Church of God took hold and then it marched steadily along. BOLD ROBBERY .- As W. M. Merrifield Bold Robbert.—As W. M. Merrifield was coming up from the Benson's Ferry landing last evening, just about dark, he was assaulted by two men who pinioued him against the fence on 43 street, about half way between Water street and the end of the street railway track, and robbed him of some ten or twelve dollars. Mr. Merrifield is a crippled soldier and walks with a cane and crutch, he was therefore utterly unable to defend himself. He had but a moment before passed the parties who robbed him, on Water street. One of them was a tall man and the other quite short. The whole thing transpired so suddenly and in so short time that Mr. M. could scarcely realize it. The rascals also took his pension Is Your Hair Tern or Falling Out?
